START YOUR CAREER WHILE EARNING YOUR DEGREE

We know working through college can be tough. That's why we want to help. Scholarships cover tuition, but where do you get money for books, rent and food? The Baccalaureate Degree Completion Program (BDCP) isn't a scholarship; it's a way to start your career. We will pay you to complete your degree, and upon graduation, you'll become a commissioned officer in America's Navy.

A REGULAR LIFE: 24/7

Sure, you'll be in the Navy – at least in ways that count. There won't be any uniforms to wear or military drill requirements. You will get credit for your time and build vacation days while still in school. Earn longevity toward future pay and retirement while still in school. When you graduate, you'll be paid more than others in different programs even if you are commissioned the same day.

BENEFITS: STARTING NOW

Insurance can be expensive. With the Navy BDCP, it's one less thing you have to worry about. You'll receive full medical and dental coverage while you're in school, at minimal cost to you. Chances are you'll have to see a doctor sometime before you graduate. You'll need dental work, and maybe even a prescription or two.

Benefits also include:

- Competitive salary with potential for raises
- 30 days of paid vacation earned every year
- Early leadership experience and responsibility
- Medical and dental care for you and your family at little cost through TRICARE
- Low-cost life insurance
- Economical shopping at military grocery stores (commissaries) and department stores (exchanges)
- Postgraduate education opportunities

Degree Completion Leadership Responsibility Adventure

YOUR CAREER WILL HIT THE GROUND RUNNING

As soon as you graduate the real fun begins. No looking for a job. No resumes to write. No interviews. No waiting for acceptance.

You'll start immediately as a leader. You'll begin using your skills and talent from the first day – gaining important experience and responsibility.

THE NAVY REWARDS EDUCATION WITH EXPERIENCE

As a Navy leader, you'll benefit from the best hands-on training there is. You'll work with the most advanced equipment on the planet no matter what your field. You'll learn from the best. As a Commissioned Officer in the United States Navy, you'll have more responsibility than many people earn in a lifetime. You'll travel to places others have only read about.

Leadership

AMERICA'S NAVY[®]

A SHORT-TERM COMMITMENT WITH LONG-TERM REWARDS

Finish your term and move on if you like. After just four years (for most job fields), you're free to take your training and your skills and offer them on the civilian market – where you'll have a large competitive edge over your civilian competition. If you decide to stay, you'll begin seeing increased flexibility in terms of where you live and what work you choose. If you pursue graduate school, the Navy will pay for it, and all your college time will count toward retirement at 20 years.

WHAT IT TAKES

To participate in the Navy BDCP, you must:

- Be enrolled or accepted at a four-year accredited college or university with no NROTC program
- Be enrolled as a full-time student
- Have completed 60 semester hours or 90 quarter hours
- Have at least a 2.8 GPA on a 4.0 scale
- Be at least 19 years old
- Meet the Navy's physical requirements

WHAT'S NEXT

Once you've been selected, you must:

- Maintain full-time student status
- Submit official transcript upon completion of each school term (semester/quarter)
- Pay all school-related expenses
- Graduate on time
