INTRODUCTION

The University of Puerto Rico at Mayagüez is currently seeking candidates for the position of Assistant Professor in the Department of Civil Engineering and Surveying. In addition to its graduate program, the Department offers high-demand undergraduate programs with growth potential within the College of Engineering. The graduate program faculty conduct research and have access to excellent resources for securing research funding from both the U.S. federal government and the private industry.

MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS

Applicants must have earned a PhD in Environmental Engineering or a related field, such as Civil Engineering or Chemical Engineering, and demonstrate a high potential for excellence in research and teaching, or have completed all degree requirements by date of hire. The candidate should have experience or potential to conduct research in one or more of the following areas: (1) biological treatment processes, (2) environmental microbiology, and (3) management of emerging contaminants. Additional areas include solid waste management and wastewater treatment for both domestic and industrial applications. Other research areas within the field of Environmental Engineering may also be considered, depending on the candidate's qualifications.

Among candidates that meet the credentials above, bilingualism (Spanish and English) would be considered a valued added asset.

JOB DESCRIPTION AND DUTIES

The successful candidate is expected to publish research work in peer-reviewed conferences and journals, advise graduate students, attract external funding for research and laboratory improvement, and teach undergraduate and graduate courses, as well as create new courses. Moreover, the candidate must participate in faculty committees, ongoing improvement and assessment activities, outreach activities, and support general service in the department.
