

“Drawing the Diaspora, Graphic Narratives from San Juan, PR”

A public lecture by

María Fernanda Díaz-Basteris

Monday, March 6, 2017 (5:00 p.m.) CH 224

María Fernanda Díaz-Basteris is a doctoral student at the University of California-Davis. She has been doing ethnographic research about graphic novels written by Puerto Ricans, both in San Juan and New York. She will report on her interviews with the creators and producers of the series “1898: El Antillano.”

The lecture / discussion will be in both Spanish and English, and takes place within the Cultural Studies seminar taught by Dr. Gregory Stephens (INGL 6985).
