

Are you interested in pursuing an academic career?

Negotiating the Ideal Faculty Position

A WORKSHOP DESIGNED FOR UNDERREPRESENTED* POSTDOCS & LATE STAGE PHD STUDENTS IN SCIENCE, ENGINEERING, AND PSYCHOLOGY

SEPTEMBER 19-21, 2010

Rice University, Houston, TX

Application deadline: July 29, 2010

Registration begins May 18, 2010.

Applicants selected to participate will be notified by August 16, 2010.

Application materials must be submitted electronically at:
advance.rice.edu/negotiatingtheidealfacultyposition

Hotel accommodations and meals provided at no cost to workshop participants. Travel to and from Houston/ Rice University is the responsibility of workshop participants.

"I am happy to say that I am now in the final stages of negotiating an academic job offer... attending this workshop made me feel more confident throughout the whole process."

"The workshop gave me a lot of confidence to go on the job market without worrying about what to expect."

"The workshop was well thought out, well planned, and addressed the key areas that someone new to academia needs to know."

This three-day, hands-on workshop will provide information about:

- Finding the right institutional fit
- Discovering what a search committee is looking for
- Standing out in the interview
- Negotiating a good start up package
- Obtaining funding
- Building your lab
- Understanding the tenure process
- Balancing work and family

Workshop Coordinator:

Julia Amborski

NSF ADVANCE Program Coordinator

jambor@rice.edu

713.348.5870

* Underrepresented in Science, Engineering and Psychology includes all women, African Americans, Hispanics, American Indians, Alaskan Natives and US born Pacific Islanders.