3. What is the minimum GPA required for completing the program? (Leave blank if you indicated that a minimum GPA is not required in the table above.)

4. Please provide any additional information about the information provided above:

We make an initial student record evaluation when the student asks for admission to the Teacher Preparation Program Curricular Sequence. Then we make a second evaluation when a student asks to enroll in the methodology course. We make a third evaluation when the candidate asks to enroll the student teaching (practicum) course. The last evaluation is when the candidate asks for authorization to take the Puerto Rico Teacher Certification Tests. In all evaluations, it is recommended that they have at least 3.00 GPA in major, overall, and professional (education) courses. The Puerto Rico Department of Education Teacher Certification Office changed the certification requirements in 2022, eliminating the minimum GPA requirement. Even so, we track our students so they can maintain an outstanding GPA.

University supervisors are specialists in the subject matter that the practitioner teaches. They visit the Clinical Experiences Center at least 6 times during the semester. As of the second semester 2021-2022, due to the Covid 19 pandemic, some visits were made virtually. Secondary School Cooperative Teachers are also subject matter specialists. They have to evaluate the practitioner on three instances. The supervisor also have to evaluate thrice. Sometimes these evaluations are done together. The evaluations are then discussed with the practitioner. Both serves as teaching models for the practitioner.

Enrollment and Program Completers

Please use the "Other" category sparingly, if there is no similar subject area or academic major listed. In these cases, you should use the text box to describe the subject area(s) and/or the academic major(s) counted in the "Other" category.

If your IHE offers both traditional and alternative programs, be sure to enter the program completers in the appropriate reports. For the traditional report, provide only the program completers in traditional programs within the IHE. For the alternative report, provide only the program completers for the alternative programs within the IHE.

What are CIP codes? The Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) provides a taxonomic scheme that supports the accurate tracking and reporting of fields of study and program completions activity. CIP was originally developed by the U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) in 1980, with revisions occurring in 1985, 1990, and 2000 (<https://nces.ed.gov/ipeds/cipcode/Default.aspx?y=55>).

Teachers Prepared by Academic Major

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by academic major for academic year 2021-22. For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Academic major" refers to the actual major(s) declared by the program completer. An individual can be counted in more than one academic major. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major, please leave that cell blank. \(\$205\(b\)\(1\)\(H\)\)

Please note that the list of majors includes several "Teacher Education" majors, as well as several noneducation majors. Please use care in entering your majors to ensure education-specific majors and non-education majors are counted correctly. For example, if an individual majored in Chemistry, that individual should be counted in the "Chemistry" academic major category rather than the "Teacher Education–Chemistry" category.

8. Describe your institution’s most successful strategies in meeting the assurances listed above:

Our curricular sequence is an alternate route that provides students who do a baccalaureate in different content areas, complete the education courses required by the Puerto Rico Department of Education. They graduate from their area of concentration with an additional 36 crs in the area of secondary education. As soon as PRDE changes its requirements for the High School Teacher Certificate, we make our changes. PRDE needs future teachers to have more courses in Special Education. We add more courses in that area. We added six (6) special education electives courses and five (5) courses about online teaching. Next academic year we will start offering courses such as Assistive Technology in Special Education, Behavior Modification Applied to a Classroom Setting, Educational Strategies for the inclusion of students with special needs in the regular classroom, Creating Online Courses, Design and Creation of Educational Materials for Online Courses and others. In addition, we created more online courses so candidates participating in the alternative route have more flexibility to complete the EPP. The Puerto Rico Department of Education (PRDE) informs island Teacher Preparation Program directors and personnel in semestral meetings regarding policy changes and departmental professional needs. The PRDE provides orientation and training for Teacher Preparation Program personnel when standards, curricular guidelines or other such documents change. This year our History and Social Studies Methodology Professor works with the Department of Education History and Social Studies Program doing the review of new standards. Our candidates complete 30 hours of classroom observation before enrolling in the teaching practicum course. During these hours of observation, candidates experience teachers' classroom realities. Candidates' first clinical experience is 15 hours classroom observation for the "Nature and Needs of Exceptional Children" course. For this experience, candidates are placed in schools (rural, urban, low-income) , now online observations and also face to face, serving students with disabilities or in specialized classrooms for students with special needs to observe diversity and differences among learners. The course emphasizes the effective strategies for working with diverse learners and learners with disabilities. The last supervised clinical experience is 15 hours (minimum) classroom observation in the candidate's content area during the Teaching Methodology course. For this experience, candidates are placed in public or private schools to observe cooperative teachers, face to face and also online. In most cases, candidates will realize their practice teaching in the same school with the same cooperating teacher. This practice affords candidates an opportunity to become familiar with the school community. English is our second language, but most textbooks and required readings are in English. Our teacher candidates can and do speak in English and Spanish in their classes. Our teacher candidates are required to take a minimum of twelve credit hours during their first two years at the university. Thus, they are prepared to work with limited English proficient students. Most of our teacher candidates are from low income families and rural schools. Their own school experience is much like that of the population they will teach. This helps them identify and also to have empathy with the students and work with the community. This year we have had many challenges in schools. Because of the Covid 19 Pandemia some our practitioners are doing virtual teaching in some schools and face to face in another. Some students teaching begging their practicum online and then switch to face to face. The Puerto Rico Department of Education had to give each practitioner an account in order to connect with the school groups that are supposed to be observe and teach. Cooperative teachers have had to deal with many situations as well. Many students do not have the necessary technology at home to actively participate in the virtual class. There are many absences. Our practitioners are very proficient in technology and provide adequate strategies for virtual teaching.

Annual Goals: Mathematics

Each institution of higher education (IHE) that conducts a traditional teacher preparation program (including programs that offer any ongoing professional development programs) or alternative route teacher preparation program, and that enrolls students receiving Federal assistance under this Act, shall set annual quantifiable goals for increasing the number of prospective teachers trained in teacher shortage areas designated by the Secretary or by the state educational agency, including mathematics, science, special education, and instruction of limited English proficient students.

Assessment Pass Rates

The pass rates table is populated from files provided by the testing company or state. The table provides information on the performance of the students in your teacher preparation program on each teacher credential assessment used by your state. In cases where a student has taken a given assessment more than once, the highest score on that test is used. In the case of a teacher preparation program with fewer than 10 scores reported on any single initial teacher credential assessment during an academic year, the program shall collect and publish information with respect to an average pass rate and scaled score on each state credential assessment taken over a three-year period. \(§205\(a\)\(1\)\(B\)\)

Please note that this page does not have an edit feature as the pass rates have already been through several rounds of verification. If you identify an error, please contact RTI's Title II Support Center and your testing company representative.

Include a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to use the principles of universal design for learning, as applicable. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the four elements listed above are not currently in place.

Our teacher candidates are required to take a learning evaluation course (EDFU 3017). In that course they learn how to prepare daily plans and organize teaching units that include appropriate assessment and evaluation techniques. The candidates learn to use assessment data to plan and revise instruction and to predict future conduct. They also learn how to design a valid assessment instrument and measure its effectiveness. Teacher candidates are required to take The Use of Microcomputers in the Classroom, EDPE 3129. This course emphasizes integration and effective use of technology in the teaching learning process. Candidates prepare numerous digital artifacts and documents during this course, one of which is the beginning of their electronic portfolio. Candidates add work and assessments in subsequent teacher preparation courses to that portfolio work culminating with their Teacher Candidate Work Sample (TCWS) during their teaching practicum. The TCWS requires candidates to analyze data from assessments, plan future instruction based on this analysis, consider alternatives that might be more effective, and show how technology was used to improve student learning. The Teacher Candidate Work Samples and electronic portfolios form key assessment tools for the Teacher Preparation Program itself. Next year, we will be offering 2 additional technology courses for prospective teachers to learn how to teach distance effectively.

1. Provide a description of the activities that prepare general education teachers to:

a. Teach students with disabilities effectively

Our teacher candidates take several courses to help them to develop the special skills and knowledge needed to work with diverse students, students with disabilities and special needs. Those courses include: Foundations of Human Growth and Development (EDFU 3011), Educational Psychology (EDFU 3012), and the Nature and Needs of Exceptional Child (EDES 4006). As well, we offer 6 additional Special Education courses that prospective teachers can enroll. Some of this courses are Assistive Technology in Special Education, Behavior Modification Applied to a Classroom Setting, and Educational Strategies for the inclusion of students with special needs in the regular classroom.

b. Participate as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Prospective teacher must complete the course Nature and Needs of Exceptional Child (EDES 4006) This course offers an overview of the psychological and educational needs of exceptional learners. It provides the experiences and knowledge necessary for the design and implementation of curricular programs, special teaching techniques, and strategies appropriate for exceptional learners. Laboratory and field experiences (30 hr in school environment) are an integral part of the course. So this allow students to learn about Individualized Education Program (IEP), meeting in a real setting.

c. Effectively teach students who are limited English proficient.

Our vernacular language is Spanish so our candidates do not have to take courses for students with limited English proficiency. However, English is our second language so students must learn English in k-12 schools. In addition, prospective teachers take a minimum of 4 English courses (12 crs) during their bachelor degree.

Contextual Information

Please use this space to provide any additional information that describes your teacher preparation program(s). You may also attach information to this report card (see below). The U.S. Department of Education is especially interested in any evaluation plans or interim or final reports that may be available.

Over the past years we have noticed many trends at the University of Puerto Rico at Mayaguez (UPRM). First, a decreasing number of candidates and completers. This can be attributed to several factors such as students migrating to the USA to finish their degrees after Hurricanes Irma and María (2017) . Second, many public and private schools in PR closed due to a decrease in k-12 enrolled students. Third, the alarming news regarding problems with pensions for public school teachers discouraged many candidates. Third, the recent earthquakes (2019) in PR caused the closure of even more schools in southwestern Puerto Rico. And finally, the Covid 19 pandemic. As of March 2020, our schools and universities changed from being face-to-face to teaching to virtually. This is the reason why the Teacher Certification Test (2019-2020) could not be offered. During the month of March 2022 and November 2022, the PCMAS were offered. However, we still have many students from other departments willing to have a teacher certification through Alternative Route. Our TPP was classified by the Puerto Rico Department of Education as excellent . As shown in previous Program Pass Rates, the program candidates continue show a high rate of success. In Spring 2018, the program was recognized for National Excellence in Teacher Preparation by CAEP. The UPRM Teacher Preparation Program began as an extension program, providing courses for in-service teachers. Now in addition to fulfilling this continuing education service for teachers from both public and private school systems, the program offers a non-degree Teacher Preparation Program for traditional and non-traditional students. The program began to offer various teacher preparation courses in 1966. The program was certified as a full-fledged teacher preparation program on October 19, 2004 by the Academic Senate's Certification 04-51. The Academic Sequence for Teacher Preparation Program, official title, has been operating successfully since that date. The program does not confer any degree. It offers the sequence of education courses required for certification as a secondary teacher by the Puerto Rico Department of Education. After completing the sequence, teacher candidates must submit an official transcript and other documents to the Puerto Rico Department of Education demonstrating that they meet all the academic and legal requirements to be certified. In addition, the candidates must approve the relevant Teacher Certification Exams prepared and offered by the College Board. In Spanish, these exams are the Pruebas para la Certificación de Maestros (PCMAS). The Academic Sequence for Teacher Preparation Program is designed for students who are pursuing or have already completed a bachelor's degree at the University of Puerto Rico at Mayagüez. In addition to the requisite series of education courses, the program requires 30 hours of classroom observations and 180 hours of teaching practice under the direct supervision of PRDE certified cooperating teachers and university faculty. The UPRM Teacher Preparation Program was accredited by the National Council Association for Teacher Education (NCATE) in 2010. That accreditation was continued by the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation in 2017 (CAEP). Our evaluation will be on 2024.
