Our Mission:

The Wisconsin - Puerto Rico Partnership for Research and Education in Materials [Wi(PR)2EM] combines the shared vision and expertise of University of Wisconsin – Madison (UW) and three campuses of University of Puerto Rico (UPR) (Mayagüez (M), Medical Sciences Campus (MSC) and Río Piedras (RP)) to form multidisciplinary and multicultural teams that seek to: (i) make transformative advances in research involving a diverse range of materials with complex nanostructured interfaces, ranging from inorganic nanostructures for catalysis to next-generation pharmaceutical materials and active soft materials, and (ii) leverage the institutional environments of the partnering universities to develop research-inspired educational curricula and experiences based on effective mentoring across all participant levels, with the overriding goal of creating a pathway that broadens participation of underrepresented groups, particularly Hispanic Americans and women, in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM). The initiatives summarized in this annual report are made possible by a history of successful collaboration and accomplishment between UW, including the UW's Materials Research Science and Engineering Center (MRSEC), and UPRM.
